

How Is myMISSION Different from Women on Mission?

myMISSION, designed specifically with young women in mind, engages participants in Bible study, community, and various missions projects.

A college student will find its structure freeing, a young mom will enjoy its simplicity, and a single professional will like the hands-on missions involvement.

As many young women prefer digital resources, all myMISSION resources are found online. The resources' ease of use speak to young women's love of technology and their unique global perspective.

Because young women desire more active involvement, missions experiences for myMISSION concentrate on participatory types of missions awareness and involvement as they pray for, engage in, learn about, and support missions. This includes interaction via social media as well as ministries in the community and beyond.

While all WMU missional characteristics are covered in myMISSION materials and experiences, not all are necessarily covered in every group session, activity, or online experience. Special events and activities, as well as participation in associational and state missions events for women, enhance the myMISSION experience.
